Chicago Blues Festival

June 8 – June 10: Millennium Park

Chicago honors its history as a destination for musicians by hosting the largest free blues festival in the world, bringing living legends and local 12-bar players to Millennium Park. This year, Pritzker Pavilion hosts headlining sets from Mavis Staples and Fantastic Negrito, as well as a tribute to blues harpist Little Walter and Chicago label Delmark Records. During the day, local acts perform on side stages, giving you plenty of time to snag a spot on the lawn.

Mamby on the Beach

June 23: Oakwood Beach

Gallagher Way (the plaza formerly known as the Park at Wrigley) tapped their neighbors at the Music Box to program free outdoor screenings on Wednesday evenings when the Cubs are on the road. The theater selected a series of mostly family-friendly films (all PG-13 or less) beginning Wednesday, May 16 with A League of Their Own. Gates open at 6pm and screenings start at 7:30.

Beer Fest on the Beach

June 22: North Ave Beach

Taste a variety of beers while hanging out at Shore Club on North Avenue Beach! Tickets include beer tastings, giveaways & MORE! Use code MART when purchasing tickets.

Chicago Pride Parade

June 24: Uptown, Chicago

Chicago's LGBTQ community comes out to celebrate with a parade that attracts over one million attendees. You'll want to head to the parade route early to grab a spot before the procession starts rolling down Halsted and Broadway between Montrose and Diversey. The Chicago Pride Parade begins at Montrose Ave and Broadway, heading south east on Broadway before veering south on Halsted St. The parade continues down Halsted and then turns east on Belmont Ave before veering south on Broadway St once again. After turning east on Diversey Pkwy, the parade ends at Lakeview Ave.

Chicago Jerk Festival

June 24: Washington Park

A culturally rich celebration of 34 Caribbean Islands, the Chicago Jerk Festival is a celebration of authentic Jamaican Jerk in its various forms. "JERK" is a traditional Jamaican art of cooking thoroughly seasoned meat, spiced with pepper and smoked on pimento sticks. Food plays a central role in family life and traditions in the Caribbean and the cuisine of the Caribbean is like a cultural patchwork quilt. This festival will give the people of Chicago, if not the Midwest, the opportunity to share in this cultural experience.
